

More on Potholes

In last month's online-only issue, I had a rant about the potholes on the street where I live (page 36), so here's a bit more.

First, I need to make a correction. I said that a councillor remarked on the state of the road at the April parish council meeting. The remark was actually made at the March meeting and was reported in the April issue.

Since the article appeared, one of my neighbours told me that a few years ago a man in a truck turned up and poured some tarmac into the potholes and then ran over the tarmac with the wheels of his truck. So although the repairs done recently were not the best job possible, perhaps they weren't the worst either.
