

Music Is Fun

Lockdown was the ideal time for piano practice, though face to face lessons were obviously not possible. However, continuity was maintained as I and my pupils adjusted to on-line lessons. For some it was a step too far, particularly for the newest, youngest learners, but for others it has worked very well.

Until Covid news is much better I shall again be only doing lessons on-line. If anyone wants to try lessons in this way all you need is a smart phone and a tablet, and obviously a piano! I usually use WhatsApp but am now using Zoom as well. I wouldn't recommend on-line for young beginners, but if you have some background knowledge then it may be possible for adults and children.
