It's a pleasure to see the magazine filling up with reports of what everyone has been doing and is planning to do in the next month or two.

The residents of Stonecliff Park are once more attending coffee mornings and tabletop sales, the PDA sees the return of the Autumn Fayre and the Christmas lunch, Rainbows and Brownies are meeting, as are Lindsey u3a members, children are back in their classrooms and films are once more being shown at the Methodist film club. Many people will be delighted to see that the community hub events are coming back, along with Storytime and craft activities for pre-school children at the library.

The Twinning Association have been unable to meet their friends in our twin village, either here or in Moncé, but they did manage to have a lovely picnic in the park, and have extended an invitation to the French families to join us in Welton for the Queen's Jubilee celebrations in June 2022.

The parish council are encouraging residents to get involved in the East Midlands In Bloom competition next year. Welton's first entry in 2019 earned a silver award and the parish council are hoping to do better next time. They are looking for ideas and volunteers: can you help?

Letters this month worry about the impact of more houses in Welton without any increase in the infrastructure. The 2011 census showed that Welton had a population of 4,327 and Market Rasen a population of 3,904. Something to think about.
