

WELTON VILLAGE HALL TRUST

In early September, the management committee of the village hall held its first in-person meeting for 18 months, which seemed like a significant milestone. Zoom had provided a massively helpful way for the Trust to conduct its essential business during that time but it was good to meet up again.

The hall now has a full calendar of activities and events through to the end of the year and beyond, so we're all hoping that a corner has been turned.

Some years ago the Trust developed plans for the replacement of the old nissen hut with an additional brick extension. Although no action was taken at that time, the condition of the nissen hut is not getting any better. Despite its venerable history and importance as the only remaining part of the hall complex that dates back to its wartime origins, it is no longer viable and will need replacement. Of course, if any heritage organisation would like to take it to restore and re-site the Trust would be pleased to hear from them but, in the meantime, we would welcome any ideas for what should replace it, possibly involving a more imaginative use of the green space at the rear of the hall. Discussions are at a very early stage, so now is the time to talk to us if you have any ideas.
